Renewed Klamath River Reach
K'utárawáx·u (Grizzly Hill) Recreation Site Access Closure Information

When: Thursday, July 3, 2025; Thursday, July 17, 2025; and Friday, July 18, 2025

What: The Klamath River Renewal Corporation (KRRRC) is implementing its Recreation Management Plan, which includes the construction or improvement of five recreation river access sites along the restored reach of the Klamath River at the previous J.C. Boyle, Copco, and Iron Gate reservoir areas. Four of the five recreation access sites are currently open with limited hours and amenities. All five sites are expected to be fully open August 1, 2025. Information about the recreation access sites and updates on access are available on KRRRC's website: klamathrenewal.org/recreation

The K'utárawáx·u (pronounced ku-ta-ra-wa-hhu) (also known as Grizzly Hill) site in California will be fully closed the evening of Thursday, July 3, the evening of Thursday, July 17, and all day Friday, July 18 to allow for the final paving of the site access road.

Where: The K'utárawáx·u (Grizzly Hill) site in California is currently only open Monday through Friday from 12:30-1:30p and 5:30-6:30p while construction is underway. Users are not able to enter or exit the site outside of these limited designated hours. To allow for paving of the site access road, the site will be closed during the evening hour on Thursday, July 3, the evening hour on Thursday, July 17, and both hours on Friday, July 18.

Cautions: Please note that the K'utárawáx·u (Grizzly Hill) recreation site is the final take out spot before Class 4 rapids – characterized by intense, powerful, and turbulent waters – in the Kikacéki Canyon, which is the area between the former Copco No. 2 Dam and former Iron Gate Reservoir. All users should plan trips based on experience level and always wear a life jacket. Nonadvanced boaters should use the Access 1 recreation site upstream to exit the channel prior to rapids and hazardous waters during these closures.
